Eight is Not Enough is an episode of Miss Spider's Sunny Patch Friends from season one. Holley throws out his cephalothorax, causing Miss Spider to have to attend all of the children's activities. G. is a very independent young lady. She uses a wheelchair but can walk with assistance. She is a small group home that is very nice. She has tutors work with her in the mornings and she is smart. One of the most popular questions we hear from web designers and usability professionals is: "How many users is enough when conducting usability tests?" Until recently, we had believed—and told our clients—that it wasn't usually necessary to test with more than eight users. We based our Eight is Enough was one of the best shows from the late 1970's and early 1980's. It was considered a dramedy. It had drama because the show could be serious at times but it also had comedy because the show was funny and it had a laugh track., Eight Was Not Enough.
